

Monday, December 12, 2005

Flashback Saturday: Best. Movie review. Ever.

That's not all that floats. Back in the early days of HollywoodBitchslap, we were basically a bunch of kids who liked movies and wanted a forum to say which ones sucked and which ones didn't. That meant the quality of our reviews was, well, mostly questionable - at best. But one review from those early days has stood the test of time, as a genuinely ground-breaking, elegant piece of cinema criticism that gave us all something to aspire to was the one and only review written by an individual known only as Never Fucking Shuts Up Bob. NFSUB reviewed the Forest Whitaker-directed film, Hope Floats, and his words have echoed throughout the years as the high benchmark in film criticism. For those who have never read these historic words, I present them to you today: CLICK HERE.

Posted by Oz in HBS/EFC at 04:06